Q4 Earnings Season Kicks Off Positively

Here are the key points:

- We are off to a good start in the Q4 earnings season, with an above-average proportion of companies beating EPS estimates. On the flip side, companies appear to be struggling to beat revenue estimates.
- Total Q4 earnings for the 36 S&P 500 members that have reported results are up +4.2% from the same period last year on +5.4% higher revenues, with 86.1% beating EPS estimates and 55.6% beating revenue estimates.
- The Q4 earnings growth pace for these 36 index members is comparable to what we had seen from this group of companies in other recent periods, while the 86.1% EPS beats percentage is tracking above the 20-quarter average of 80.6%.
- The revenue growth pace for this group of index members represents a deceleration relative to what we had seen from the group in other recent periods, while the 55.6% revenue beats percentage is a new 20-quarter low for this group of 36 index members.
- For the Finance sector, we now have Q4 results for 35% of the sector's market capitalization in the index. Total earnings for these Finance companies are up +1.4% from the same period last year on +1.5% higher revenues, with 76.9% beating EPS estimates and 53.8% beating revenue estimates.
- The Finance sector's Q4 performance is tracking below what we had seen from these companies in other recent comparable periods, with notable weakness on the revenues front.
- Looking at Q4 as a whole, combining the actual results that have come out with estimates for the still-to-come companies, total S&P 500 index earnings are currently expected to be up +0.2% from the year-earlier level on +2.2% higher revenues, which would follow the +3.8% earnings growth in 2023 Q3 on +2.0% higher revenues.
- Q4 earnings are expected to be above the year-earlier level for half of the 16 Zacks sectors, with the Technology, Retail, Consumer Discretionary, and Utilities sectors enjoying robust year-over-year earnings growth.

- Sectors expected to experience the biggest earnings declines in Q4 include Autos, Basic Materials, Medical, Energy, and Transportation.
- For the Finance sector, total Q4 earnings are expected to be up +8.2% from the same period last year on +3.9% higher revenues. This would follow the sector's +9.7% earnings growth on +6.0% higher revenues in 2023 Q3.
- For the Technology sector, total Q4 earnings are expected to be up +18.7% from the same period last year on +6.6% higher revenues. Had it not been for the strong Tech sector contribution, Q4 earnings for the remainder of the index would be down -6.4% (instead of up +0.2% as a whole).
- Looking at the calendar year picture, total S&P 500 earnings are expected to rebound by +11.4% next year after the expected -3.5% decline in 2023.
- Estimates for full-year 2024 have notably stabilized in recent days after starting to come down in October and November 2023. While estimates in the aggregate are still modestly coming down, estimates for a number of sectors, including Technology, Consumer Discretionary, and Retail, have moved higher over the last few weeks.
- The implied 'EPS' for the S&P 500 index, calculated using the current 2023 P/E of 22.5X and index close, as of January 16th, is $211.68, compared to $220.95 in 2022 and $208.23 in 2021. Using the same methodology, the index 'EPS' works out to $235.71 in 2024 (P/E of 20.2X). The multiples have been calculated using the index's total market cap and aggregate bottom-up earnings for each year.

While Citigroup (C) beat both EPS and revenue estimates, JPMorgan (JPM) and Bank of America (BAC) followed the emerging trend at this early stage in the Q4 reporting cycle of easily beating EPS estimates but coming up short concerning top-line estimates.

It may be premature to draw any firm conclusions from the 36 S&P 500 members, or a little over 7% of the index's total membership, that have reported December-quarter results at this stage. But the disparity between earnings and revenue performance is fairly pronounced, at least at this stage.

As noted earlier, we are off to a good start, with an above-average proportion of these companies beating EPS estimates. In fact, the 86.1% EPS beats percentage is notably above the 20-quarter average for this group of 36 index members of 80.6%. The earnings growth pace for this group of companies is also comparable to what we had seen from this group of companies in other recent quarters.

The Q4 performance picture isn't that reassuring on the revenues side, with the growth pace for these 36 index members showing a decelerating trend and the revenue beats percentage the lowest in the preceding 20-quarter period, as you can see in the comparison charts below.

We have noted some degree of revenue weakness in the preceding reporting cycle as well, though the magnitude of revenue underperformance this time around appears more pronounced. That's assuming the current trend is for real and not reflective of an unrepresentative sample.

Perhaps disinflation is at work in producing this revenue trend.

Beyond the results that have come out, total Q4 earnings are currently expected to be +0.2% above the year-earlier period on +2.2% higher revenues. This would follow the +3.8% increase in index earnings in 2023 Q3 on +2.0% higher revenues.

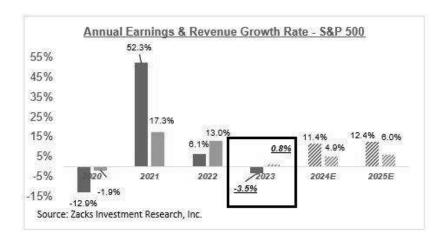

The chart below shows the overall earnings picture on a quarterly basis.

As you can see from these quarterly earnings-growth expectations, the growth picture is expected to steadily improve over the next few quarters.

Below, we show the overall earnings picture for the S&P 500 index on an annual basis.

Given the expected moderation in the U.S. economy's growth trajectory due to the cumulative effects of Fed tightening, these estimates likely need to come down. Some of that downward adjustment is already happening, as seen in the chart below.

As we have noted before, full-year 2024 estimates started coming down in October, with the trend continuing in November and early December, but appear to have stabilized in recent weeks.

The Report in Detail

Note: This report has six sections. The first section, titled Q4 Earnings Season Scorecard, provides a real-time update of the earnings season, puts the results thus far in a historical context, and highlights the major sectors. The second section, titled the Blended Picture, presents the composite or blended Q4 expectations by combining the actual results that have come out with estimates for the still to come companies. The Third section, titled the Context, puts the blended Q3 expectations in the context of what was reported in the preceding quarters and what is expected in the coming quarter(s). This section provides both earnings and revenues on a quarterly basis, both the dollar amounts as well as the year-over-year growth rates. The fourth section, titled Annual Data, presents the earnings and revenues data on an annual basis. The fifth section, titled Small-Cap Earnings, presents the earnings picture for the S&P 600 index. The final section visually presents the market capitalization and earnings contribution of the 16 Zacks sectors.

Section 1 – 2023 Q4 Earnings Season Scorecard

For the 36 S&P 500 companies that have reported Q4 results, total earnings are up +4.2% from the same period last year on +5.4% higher revenues, with 86.1% beating earnings estimates and 55.6% beating revenue estimates.

- a. All the earnings analysis in this report pertains to the S&P 500 index, a handy proxy for the entire business world. We use the index's current membership as the basis for all period comparisons, meaning that even historical periods reflect the index's current membership.
- b. We divide the corporate world into 16 sectors compared to the official S&P 11 GICS. We have standalone sectors like Autos, Construction, Conglomerates, Aerospace, Transportation and Business Services that provide for a better understanding of trends in these key areas of the economy.
- c. All references to 'earnings' mean 'total earnings' or 'aggregate net income' and not 'mean or median EPS.'
- d. We make adjustments to reported GAAP earnings to account for non-recurring or one-time items, but we do consider employee stock options (ESOs) as a legitimate business expense. Unlike Zacks, Wall Street and all other data vendors don't treat ESO's as a recurring business expense.

The comparison charts below put the Q4 earnings and revenue growth rates in a historical context.

The comparison charts below put the Q4 EPS and revenue beats percentages for these 36 index members in a historical context.

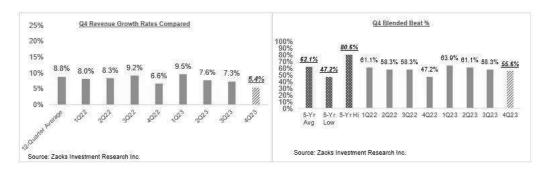

As you can see above, revenue beats are tracking below other recent periods as well as the historical averages.

You can see this more clearly in the 'blended' beats percentage that shows the proportion of these companies that have beaten both EPS and revenue estimates.

For the 36 index members that have reported results thus far, only 55.6% have been able to beat both EPS and revenue estimates. The comparison charts below put the Q4 revenue growth pace and the blended beats percentage in a historical context.

For the Finance sector, we now have Q4 results from 35% of the sector's market capitalization in the S&P 500 index. Total earnings for these Finance companies are up +1.4% from the same period last year on +1.5% higher revenues, with 76.9% beating EPS estimates and 53.8% beating revenue estimates.

The comparison charts below put the sector's Q4 blended beats percentage in a historical context ('blended' beats mean companies that beat 'both' EPS and revenue estimates)

Section 2 – The Blended Picture

Total Q4 earnings or aggregate net income for the S&P 500 index are expected to be up +0.2% from the same period last year on +2.2% higher revenues. The summary table below shows the blended or composite Q4 expectations and the actuals for the preceding period (2023 Q3).

As you can see above, the quarterly earnings tally bottomed in 2023 Q1 and has been steadily on an uptrend since then.

Total Tech sector earnings are expected to grow +18.7% in Q4 on +6.6% higher revenues, which follows earnings growth of +25.1% on +4.6% higher revenues in the preceding quarter (2023 Q3). The Tech sector's growth pace is expected to continue and remain positive from 2023 Q4 onwards, as we can see below.

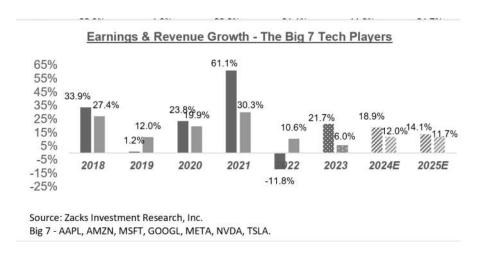

The Big 7 Tech Players

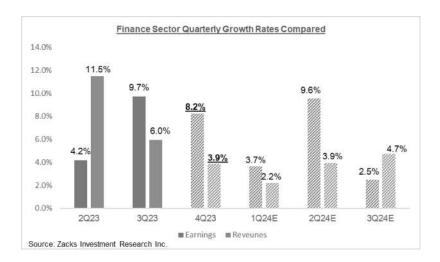

For the 'Big 7 Tech Players' - Microsoft, Alphabet, Meta, Nvidia, Apple, Tesla, and Amazon – total Q4 earnings are expected to be up +38.4% on +12.4% higher revenues in Q4. This would follow the +54.2% earnings growth for the group in Q3 on +12.9% higher revenues, as the chart below shows.

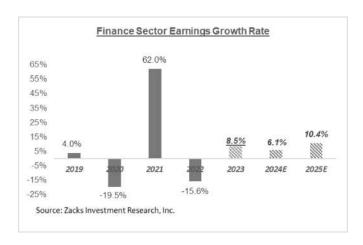

The chart below shows the group's earnings picture on an annual basis.

Finance sector earnings are expected to be up +8.2% on +3.9% higher revenues in Q3, which follows earnings growth of +9.7% on 6.0% higher revenues in 2023 Q2.

Section Three - The Context

Let's take a look at earnings expectations for 2023 Q4 compared to what companies earned in the last few quarters and what they are expected to earn in the coming quarters.

It may be obvious, but it's still useful to explain what we mean by total earnings.

January 17, 2024

This means the sum of net income for all companies in the S&P 500. For historical periods through the reported 2023 Q4 results, we have taken the total earnings (net income, not EPS) for each company in the S&P 500 and added them up to arrive at the sector and index level totals (we do adjust reported GAAP earnings for non-recurring items, but consider employee stock options as a legitimate business expense).

For the coming quarters, including the still-to-come 2023 Q4 results, we have taken the Zacks Consensus EPS for each company in the index, multiplied that by the corresponding share count (from the last reported quarter) to arrive at the total earnings for each company. And then we aggregated them to arrive at the totals for each sector and the index as a whole. The lack of accuracy in real-time share count notwithstanding, this gives us a fairly accurate view of the total earnings picture.

Section 4 - Annual Earnings

Total earnings or aggregate net income for the S&P 500 index for 2023 are expected to be down -3.5% on +0.8% higher revenues, with 2024 earnings expected to be up +11.4% on +4.9% higher revenues. Table 6 provides a summary of annual earnings and revenue data.

The Margins Picture

Net margins (aggregate net income divided by aggregate revenues) are expected to be 11.4% in Q4, down from 12.6% in 2023 Q3 and 11.6% in 2022 Q4.

As you can see in the chart below showing the year-over-year changes in net margins, margins modestly turned positive in 2023 Q3 but are currently expected to be modestly down in 2023 Q4.

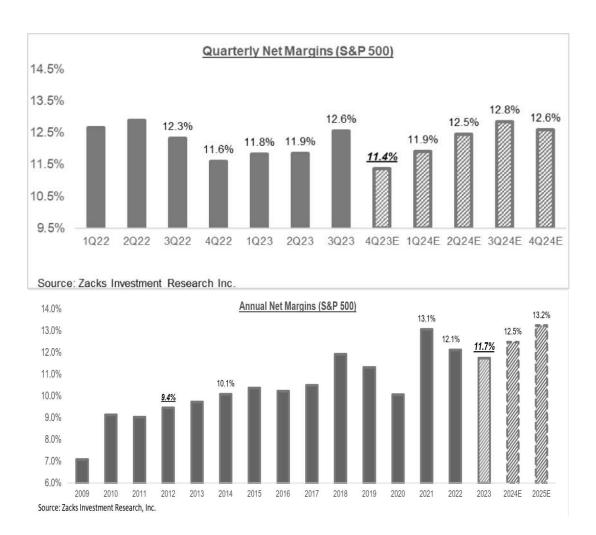

Looking at net margins on an annual basis, full-year 2023 margins are expected to reach 11.7%, down from 2022's 12.4% and 2021's 13.1%. The expectation is for margins to rise next year to 12.5%.

The charts below show current margins expectations in a historical context. The first chart shows margins on a quarterly basis, while the second shows annual margins since 2007.

As you can see in the annual chart, margins reached the cyclical high point in 2018 as a result of the tax cut legislation but modestly contracted the following year (2019) and pulled back massively as a result of the pandemic in 2020. Margins bounced back impressively in 2021, reaching a new all-time record.

The expectation is that the ongoing inflationary pressures ease over time, with margins remaining stable in 2023 and starting to expand in 2024.

What we saw in the ongoing inflation cycle is management teams' ability to pass on higher expenses to end consumers and protect margins. That said, not all companies in every industry have the same degree of pricing power. Also, management teams have to be mindful of the demand implications of ever-rising prices. On the whole, with the inflation question expected to continue moving in the right direction, analysts see margins start to expand again, as you can see in the chart above.

Section 5 - The Small-Cap Data - S&P 600 Index

For the 23 S&P 600 companies that have reported results for their fiscal quarters ending in November which we count as part of our Q4 tally, total earnings are down -22.6% from the same period last year on +1.2% higher revenues, with 34.8% beating both earnings and revenue estimates.

Data as of: January 17, 2024 www.zacks.com

Looking at the small-cap index on an annual basis, total 2023 earnings are currently expected to be down -7.2% on -7.4% lower revenues.

The chart below shows the small-cap index's annual earnings and revenue growth.

The chart below represents the small-cap index's total earnings instead of the growth rates as a way to show the hit to earnings as a result of the pandemic.

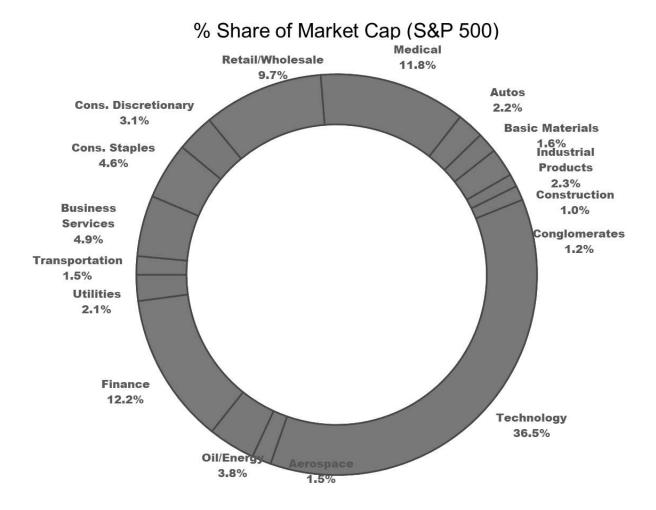

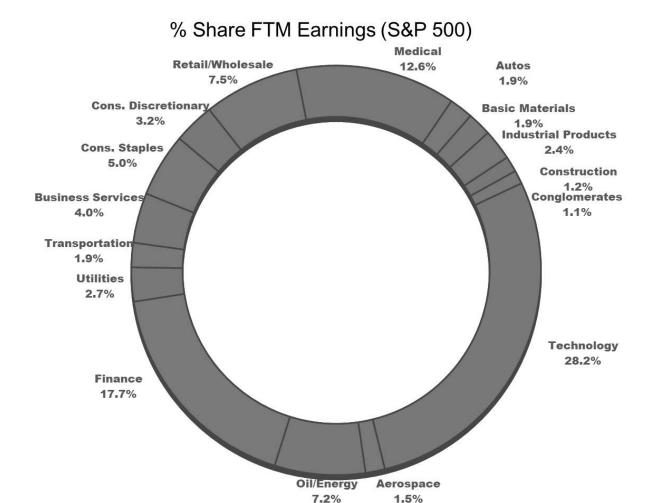

Section 6: Market Cap vs. Total Earnings

The charts below show the share of total forward 12-month earnings (next four quarters) as well as the share of total market capitalization for each of the 16 Zacks sectors in the S&P 500 index. Since the S&P 500 is a market-cap-weighted index, each sector's market cap share is also its index weight.

The Finance and Technology sectors account for the lion's share of the index's total market capitalization and also bring in a big proportion of its total earnings. Technology is by far the biggest earnings contributor, as you can see in the charts below.

Relative market cap weights in the small-cap S&P 600 index are totally different from the large-cap index. The Finance sector is a much bigger part of the small-cap index, while the Tech sector is a significantly smaller part.
